Commitment: The goal document was submitted on time. The goal document was aggressive enough in terms of work. However, the team could have been a bit more aggressive on goals related to features.

Goals: The team met all the goals. They were able to demo what they promised.

Planning, Estimation, Execution: Good estimation of the goals and each team-member's potential. The team needs to decide on the front-end and start making progress on the integration of front end and the rest of the code.

Communication: The team communicated very well. Stand-ups could be better. The client was kept in the loop in terms of the progress made.

Sprint Demo: Login and Direct message was demo'ed. The product was demo'ed on a dummy client, hence I have my reservations about it. I would have liked to see some progress on the actual client. Nevertheless, the team came through to demo the functionalities which is important.

Distribution of work: Good distribution of work. A little more aggressive towards developing features is suggested (just a suggestion ---I know you all have lives!)

Code quality: No tests in ConversationTest class, good tests otherwise, java doc, modular code --good.

Testing: satisfactory amount of tests.

No README on github.
